that we should close all day next Friday, Decoration Day, in honor of that great, shadowy army of men who have given up their lives that these United States might be, and might continue to be.

A day that is dedicated to the memory of those who have worn the uniform, whether that uniform was blue or gray, khaki, olive drab or navy blue, seems to us a day that should be universally observed.

Honor the Nation's Dead Today

This is Memorial Day, and everyone should pay some fitting attention to it, in assisting in the honoring of the nation's hero dead. Many lodges and organizations of purely civic nature are observing the day as a memorial of their departed members, and even families make it a point to visit the cemeteries and assist in the services held there by the different soldier organizations.

It is the duty of every American citizen today to pause from the usual avocations of the day and spend at least a part of the time in showing respect for the brave men who sacrificed all for the nation's life. Decorate your place of business or residence with the nation's colors, flags should be half-masted until noon, and then raised to full-mast.

Middle Class Pay the Taxes

While investigation committees are squandering the people's millions in Washington, the little game by which the ordinary people or the middle class pay the bills in their taxes continues. The millionaires have bought up all the tax exempt bonds, and the income tax with him becomes a joke; the farmer who with all of his howling seldom pays on a $5.00 value per acre on his farm, refuses to sell for less than a hundred times that amount, but the salaried clerk and the working man, whose wage is known, pays dollar for dollar in value excepting only his pitiful exemption. The merchant adds his heavy taxes on to the price of his goods; the manufacturer can do the same, but the "goat" of the government, the middle class man, too honest to steal, must pay the bills for them all. Organized labor protects itself and even adds inflictions because they are organized and the political powers fear them, but the white collar man has no organization, and counts for nothing politically, hence is neglected. About time the real taxpayers should organize and get some relief.

The Mud Slingers

A public official in a modern congressional investigation is covered with political slime, forced to resign, the charges against him dropped, and the mud guns turned on to another victim. Proving charges seems a secondary consideration.

This system does not seem honorable, just or fair. If continued, it will be impossible to get any man who cares for his family or his name to serve his country in a public office, for regardless of guilt or innocence, political enemies can blacken him in such ways that it is practically impossible for him to defend himself.

Statesmanship seems to be a thing of the past except in rare instances, and dirty commercialized politics for the benefit of cliques, groups and blocs has taken its place.

Business Men Let the Other Fellows Do It

Englewood has several excellent associations whose duty it is to look after the interests of the community and the business interests especially, yet the meetings of these important organizations are not attended by one business concern out of twenty. In fact there are a few "old timers" about twenty in number who attend every meeting and do all they can to keep up public enthusiasm and put pep into the community, while the rest seem content to let the other fellows do the work. The fact that they pay their dues does not mean that they are doing their duty; their presence at the meetings is worth more than their measly dollars, and no one should miss the important meetings. Englewood is not getting its share of police protection, its streets and improvements generally are not cared for as they should be and would be if a united association went after the authorities and demanded our rights. Don't complain of the town being backward, it is YOU, Mr. Businessman, and property owner, who will not attend association meetings and assist in looking after the interests of the home town. Turn out at the next meeting and learn what you are missing financially, commercially and socially by staying away.

Safest to Stay on the Sidewalk

Unquestionably some arrangement should be made for the regulation of the pedestrian, especially in the shopping and business districts. It would be much better for all concerned if pedestrians were required to remain on the sidewalk in these districts until vehicle traffic is halted.

In outlying districts, where there are neither officers or traffic signals, we should stop, look and make sure that the street is safe before crossing. On streets where traffic moves in both directions stop at the curb and look to the left; at the center of the street stop again and look to the right. It is interesting in this connection to know that the longest line of cars seldom takes more than thirty seconds to pass. Who is there that can't afford to wait thirty seconds for safety's sake?

It Doesn't Matter

The things that often mean so much in life mean little afterwards. Social and financial standing, religion and occupation, mean but little or nothing to us when we are called upon; our duty is to serve, regardless.

This high responsibility we accept with a feeling of serious determination to render the best service we can; we forget the things that were, and remember only the things that make for better service.

Our Weekly Poem

A WOMAN ON DECORATION DAY

By Mary Blake Woodson in the Country Gentleman

I stand in the crowd and I watch them,
As the wounded in battle go by—
How little they know as they pass me
That none are as wounded as I!

I have tears for what they have given—
Their youth, their Dawn of the Day—
But I'm hungry for all they have left them,
Who gave in a bitterer way.

The eyes that are blinded, the wound stripes,
The limps, the wheel chair and crutch,
Catch at my heart with the sorrow
That bodily blemishes clutch.

And I love them with terrible pity—
I, whose body is whole—
But what if they saw my shattered faith
Or looked at my wounded soul?

Would they know me at once for a comrade
In pain, in courage more sad?
I, without glory of battle,
Who sent away all that I had?

Would they see how my whole life was crippled?
Perhaps if these boys understood
It would humble those scars they are proud of
As only such deeper scars could.

And perhaps I'd go limping out yonder,
Ahead of them all, at the start—
I, with my poor, maimed spirit—
I, with my broken heart!

Where to Get Histories of Englewood

The "Story of Englewood" was published by the Englewood Business Men's association and they have taken over the distribution of the same, no one else having anything whatever to do with it, hence letters to the author or to the Englewood Times can receive no attention.

Persons who have ordered copies of the history may secure them of Mr. C. R. Edrington, manager of the association at the association rooms at 6235 Halsted st. in the Chicago City Bank bldg. Mr. Edrington has all of the orders and is sending them out by Boy Scouts. If you want a copy, order of him, Wentworth 8041.

Concert at North Congregational Church

On Tuesday evening, June 3, The Berkeley Concert Trio will hold a recital at North Congregational church, 59th and La Salle sts. The Berkeley Concert Trio are accomplished Marimbaphone artists and singers, and are well known on the Chautauqua platform.

This recital is being given under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Circle of the church, and was selected because of the excellence of the program, as well as the novelty of the Marimbaphone. The Marimbaphone is a South American instrument of wonderful musical possibilities, and the Berkeley Trio having years of experience on this instrument, it is certain to be a concert of unusual interest, and one well worth attending.

IS THERE WARMTH IN SMOKE?

Matter Over Which There Seems to Be Possibility for Considerable Difference of Opinion.

It sounds rather unreasonable and, anyway, we would rather be colder and see the sunshine. We refer to the fancied discovery by a suburban New Yorker that coal smoke makes the city warmer. He writes: "Several towns on the south side of Long Island have noticed a greater discrepancy in the weather this winter than ever before. Instead of varying three or four or five degrees from the New York city temperature, it is noted that there is a variation of ten or fifteen degrees. That is, it is warmer in New York by that much. Is it possible that the use of soft coal, with smoke hanging like a blanket over the city, has a tendency to make it less cold?"

It would take a long and precise series of experiments to prove this; and there would still be the possibility that the higher temperature might be due to other causes. We know that the city is hotter in the summer than the country, but that is due to the reflection from the pavements and superheated walls of buildings.

If the "smoke pall" keeps out the greater atmospheric frostiness, it would possibly be explained on the same lines that a smoke smudge protects peach and orange orchards from northern blasts in early spring.

Cities live under a more or less perpetual smudge. The "smudge pots" are always going; but if we could have our pure air from heaven strained of smoke and the sun-rays falling upon us instead of the soot, we should cheerfully accept zero instead of ten degrees above.

Quit 'Em Cold.
Tapering off a bad habit is but spinning out a rope to hold you till the next siege of the temptation.

Wheels and Roads Gradually Improved from Cave-Man Days

Lost in the mists which shroud the beginnings of history is the first man. Wanting to get a log from one place to another, he rolled it instead of carrying it. In one year or many thousands of years, no one knows how many, early man conceived the idea of smoothing the path over which he rolled his logs. The first stone removed from the hillside down which a log was to be rolled, the first hole in the ground filled up that the log might not stick, marked the beginning of road building.

In the course of time it occurred to some man that the smaller the log the easier it rolled. From this beginning the log sections which were the first wheels, were born; in India today can be seen bullock carts, the wheels of which are flat sections, cut from logs. Mounting these "wheels" on an "axle," which was a smaller tree, was a true invention, but the making and use of the first wheel must have been pure discovery.

Road building, too, was discovery, rather than invention. Early man must soon have found out that heavy loads sink into soft earth, and rather than wait for the mud to dry, was led to harden the roadbed by the first means at hand. Whether this was accomplished by the placing of flat rocks in the path of the first carts, or covering the mud with boughs, grass, branches of trees (progenitors of corduroy roads), history does not say. The Romans showed the world what cut stone in courses could do towards making permanent roads (the Appian Way is still a usable stone road) and McAdam taught us what crushed stone may do, but these were but improvements upon the original discovery.

It is a long stretch of years from a log section to balloon tires, from a grass-covered path to a modern cement, brick, macadamized, oiled or tarred roadbed, but while these modern implements are the very best we know and the product of the brains of many inventors, the original means of transportation they improved were not inventions, but discoveries of means which nature had placed ready for man's use.

Smallest Birds.
The smallest bird is the minute humming bird of South America. Some are little bigger than moths. Despite their small size, they are arrayed in gorgeous plumage. They dart about in sunshine like living flashes of light; so swift are their movements that it is difficult to obtain more than a brief glimpse of them. Sometimes these tiny birds can be studied when they hover above their favorite flowers.

The First Power.
When the first electric power station was established in Bolivia the South American Indians thought that the white man was stealing the moon's light and power for his business. There were indignation meetings, which were suppressed only by the gradual understanding by the natives of the great benefit of electricity through this power station.

Couldn't Love a Coward.
I was about ten years old. My friend and I were walking home from school when a boy came along and pushed me so hard I fell. When I looked for my beau, thinking he was defending me, I saw him running home. My love ended for him right there.—Exchange.

The Seeing Eye.
Nature is a great inspirer, indeed, but she is such only for those who have the springs of inspiration within themselves. The "bush" burns, without being consumed, only for a Moses, for the man whose eye is furnished to see.—Abraham Mitrie Rihbany, in "Wise Men."

Nation's Forest Problem.
Every year makes the forest problem of the United States more clear, says Col. William B. Greeley, chief of the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture. The problem has two main features. The first feature is the rising cost of timber products, which is due primarily to heavier transportation charges from more and more distant sources of supply. The second feature is the unproductive conditions of immense areas of land which are not adapted to agriculture.

Theta Lambda Gamma Phi

On Sunday, May 18, Theta Lambda Gamma Phi, Alpha Chapter, had their solemn initiation of six pledges together with a formal dinner dance at the Palmer House. Two cabs called for the girls at the home of their president, Miss Alma Mehl, 6700 S. Halsted st. The members all wore dainty wristlets of pink sweet peas. Miss Lucille Edwards of 6538 S. Halsted st., was mistress of the ceremony of initiation.

"In some respects," remarked Mr. Grumpson, "women are smarter than men. It takes a self-made man a long time to get used to having a butler around, but in less than six months after they become rich his wife, who rose from poverty with him, can refer to Dawkins in offhand manner as an 'old family retainer.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Heat Injurious to Books.

It is undeniably true that the dry heat which we use in our American homes is ruinous to furniture, books and pictures. This, of course, can be avoided by forcing damp air into the room or by using pans of water concealed on the raidator. But no matter how dampened, a direct draft of heat will play havoc with furnishings and the house builder should avoid it.

the best dancing circles. The little Misses Dorothy Carlson, Josephine Levy and Bernice Schneider are shown in a very clever pose in one of the dances that Ermie Schultz teaches. This and many other beautiful features will be shown at the annual revue which will be given by the Englewood Dancing academy at the Empress theatre next Thursday and Friday, June 5th and 6th.

"Triumph" at Stratford Theater Sunday, June 1st, for One Week

It will be recalled that as a result of a nation-wide idea contest conducted by Cecil B. DeMille, thirty thousand answers were received. The winning idea, "The Ten Commandments," was made into a sensationally successful motion picture.

Aside from the idea to film the Decalogue, however, the contest was invaluable in giving an accurate view of what representative theater-goers really wanted.

An outstanding cry was, "Give us more stories of business, of industry." Said the husbands, "We want to see men on the screen like those we know." Said the wives, "We want to see the movies but it's hard to get our hubbies to stir out in the evenings. They say they don't like just love stories. Give them something of their own stuff, and our job will be easy!"

Hence the new DeMille picture, "Triumph," which carries one from modern factories to gilded cafes, from overalls to Paris gowns, and from polo to a park bench in Madison Square, New York, a picture for men as fell as women.

The picture is portrayed by a large cast that fairly bristles with interesting names.

DeMille comes into his own again in "Triumph."

Marked Improvement on South Park Blvd.

Remarkable improvements have just been made in the neighborhood of 92nd st. and South Park ave., within the past few weeks.

For example, South Park ave. can now be traveled by autoists right out into the Roseland territory. The road now goes through under the Rock Island and Western Indiana railroad and in addition, a large number of people have, near 90th st. and South Park ave., bought lots from Mr. Frank De Lugagly, who is selling seven and one-half acres on convenient terms as the first addition to Boulevard Park.

This entire neighborhood is making marked strides and is additional proof as to the south side's advantages from an investment standpoint.

Both Done Well and Entitled to Credit

May 21, 1924.
Sullivan's Englewood Times,
65th St. and Emerald Ave.,
Chicago.
Gentlemen:

I thank you for sending me, at my request, a copy of your issue of April 25, containing a letter signed by my predecessor, B. S. Wilson, relative to the bridges in Auburn Park. I have always given ex-Alderman Wilson all the credit he is entitled to in connection with the bridges mentioned and any information I have given improvement associations or the press has been accurate. The facts are as follows:

Ex-Alderman Wilson did succeed in having an item of $15,000.00 included in last year's budget, for the construction of bridges in Auburn Park. I do not know anything about his work in obtaining the appropriation, but I do know that he did not work any harder than I did to secure the larger appropriation hereinafter mentioned. When I took office, I discovered the item in the budget and immediately consulted the Bridge Department as to what they knew of the matter. They stated that they had made no estimate or plans of any kind and they would have to see what could be done with the money. I worked very hard, as the men in that department can testify, in conjunction with the Auburn Park Improvement association, to find a type of bridge which would be satisfactory to the people and yet could be constructed with the money available. On account of personal acquaintance, I know that the men in charge of the department gave this matter special attention for me and the Engineer of Bridges, Mr. Pilphelt, after some search, found a type of bridge in Sherman park, which he thought would answer the purpose. They found, however, that the money would only cover the cost of the bridges at one of the two streets, and Normal ave. was chosen. Very efficient work was done, but $15,000.00 was not sufficient to complete the one set of bridges and I procured from the department, sufficient funds to complete same. I then, in this year's budget, succeeded in having an item of $17,900.00 approved, so that the bridges on Eggleston ave. could be constructed the same as those at Normal ave.

I know that the above are facts, and I am sure that my predecessor will not claim the slightest credit for the appropriation in this year's budget, which I secured. I have at no time, as stated, attempted to detract from the credit due him for his part in the matter, but feel that the letter published by you does not show that I personally was responsible for more of the appropriation and work than he was.

I trust that you will be able to give this letter as strong a heading as that given to ex-Alderman Wilson's letter and find space in your paper to publish same.

Assuring you that I will appreciate that, I remain,

Very truly yours,
DONALD S. McKINLAY,
DSM:LM Alderman, 19th Ward.

Are You Superstitious?

Superstition and its tendencies is scoffed at in the present age. No one would acknowledge that he were superstitious in the least. It might prove to be an interesting experiment for an individual to observe himself to see if he ever yielded habitually to superstitious practices. Two habitual practices were observed in New City recently within a few moments of each other. A man stepped out of his car with his fingers crossed. His observation was that he carried no extra tire, and that for the last two weeks he had driven with his fingers crossed since one of the front tires was in a condition to burst at any moment.

The other instance occurred at the time when a group was seated at a table. Accidently the salt was spilled. Immediately the one who had spilled the salt threw a few grains over either the right or the left shoulder; the one that changed the luck from good to bad.

When one sees little practices of this kind in his own community one naturally asks, "What do you do, consciously, unconsciously, or habitually that averts ill fortune or brings good luck. Do you fear to see a black cat cross your path, hesitate to open a parasol in the house, or plant yur cucumbers by the moon?" A list of the various practices among individuals in a community would be enough to prove interesting to the neighbors or fill a "Faultless Starch" book with enticing material.

The young man had just told the sweet high school girl that "Music always carried him away," and she immediately began strumming rag time at high speed, but he didn't take the hint.

Why Talk Peace But Teach War?

From every pulpit we hear thunderings against war; societies and organizations urge peace upon earth, yet everyone is taught of "the glories of war." The histories in our schools pay little attention to any other events, from the most ancient to modern. Even the war stories of the Bible are the favored texts of the preacher. Monuments are raised to mighty generals but few philanthrophists. Art, music, literature all deal with the pomp and circumstance of war, but few works treat of the peace and good will we are so anxious to have the coming generation practice. All of our holidays excepting only Christmas and Easter, are memorials of wars or the participants in them, and upon each recurrence of them we point with pride to the glorious deeds of our heroes. It will take many years of education along far different lines from those of the present, before the naturally combative ideas of youth are changed. See how the Boy Scout is prideful of his semi-military uniform and drill, and even the girls are inspired with a military spirit in their organizations. The mirts of the peaceful citizen; the wonderful achievements of the medical profession in alleviating pain and preventing disease and death; the great benefits of our inventors and their inventions; the work and patient toil of our teachers and educators and the glories that within them lie, must be taught to our youth and less attention paid to the bunkum of political agitators who all become patriots when candidates for office. We are not "pacifists" in the general acceptance of the word, and believe in defense of our rights, and loyalty to our great land, but we do not believe in going around with a chip on our shoulder anxiously seeking for some nation to knock it off.

W. C. T. U. to Meet Monday

The Englewood W. C. T. U. will meet in the parlors of the Englewood Baptist church Monday afternoon, June 2, at half past two. Reports on the drive for the Jubilee fund will be given and there will be a good program on one of our departments of work. An especially good attendance is asked for.

The Jubilee drive for the expenses of the national convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is well under way, and is being pushed with energy by the members of the organization. The convention will be held in Medinah temple in November, and delegates and visitors will be here, not only from our own country, but from many other lands. The marvelous results of fifty years of work by white ribboners are to be portrayed in a great pageant and the convention will be of most unusual interest.

Messages to Seekers of Success

To Save Is to Have

Suppose you save 25 cents a day. That does not mean much to the average man. You won't miss it.

Yet that 25 cents a day in ten years grows to nearly a thousand dollars. And the interest, which we pay you for saving your money, brings the total to well over eleven hundred dollars.

Think of what you can do with this.

Realize Your Dreams

Just a few years of small but steady savings will bring you many of the things you are longing for. Perhaps you want a car. Perhaps you want to buy the farm next to you. Perhaps you want to start a son in business, or to go traveling, or to educate yourself or your children.

Saving will do all these. And best of all, you will have formed the saving habit and will never be one of the nine men out of every ten who pass their last years penniless—in the poorhouse or dependent on others.

Will They Put the "Bunk" Over?

With no idea of performing any good work for the country, or punishing any of the "higher up" thieves, both of the old political parties are playing a nice little game of blind man's bluff in Washington. Both parties are jockeying for political advantages, and neither have any idea or care to protect the people who pay the taxes on which these little playmates feed. There is much important legislation waiting on the calendar, but they have no time for that while they may pick political plums for themselves, or besmirch the reputations of the fellows on the other side. This fall the people have their innings, and it will be up to them to punish these bunk shooters by defeating their candidates, or at least such of them as we know to be playing the game down in Washington. A new party will be forced to take up these issues in justice to the nation, and the old timers will be surprised to see the worm turn. Reading the daily papers, or even listening over the radio now, disgusts one with so-called American politics, and any change would be welcome, as it surely could be no worse than that we are now suffering from.

Goiter in Illinois Pupils and Its Cure

Out of 3,151 students examined last year at the University of Illinois, 1,234 were called back for reexamination and advice concerning the care and treatment of minor ailments. This means that one out of every three students examined had some remediable form of physical defect. The percentage of physical defects in the general population is probably no less than that among the university students according to the state health officer.

Out of 6,869 natives of Illinois at the state university, 925, or more than 13 per cent, have enlarged thyroid glands, a condition known as goiter. About 33 per cent of the native young women at the university have goiter, while only 6 per cent of the native young men are so affected. Statistics collected by investigators all over the world show that girls are more susceptible to goiter than boys.

Goiter of the kind commonly found in Illinois is caused by a lack of iodine in the body. Under normal, healthy conditions a person eats small amounts of iodine which is present in water and foods, and this iodine is stored up in the thyroid glands for use as the body demands. When absent, the glands attempt to supply the iodine by excessive functioning and enlargement, or goiter results.

Water and food products in Illinois are generally free from iodone in significant amounts and as a result goiter is rather widely prevalent, especially among adolescent girls. To prevent goiter one needs merely to add a little iodine to the other food needs of the body, says Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, the state health director.

There are three simple ways of adding iodine to the food supply of the body. One is in candy tablet form, another is to iodize the drinking water supply, and the third is to iodize the table salt. Iodized candy tablets and iodized table salt are purchasable on the open market in commercial forms.

A Son of the Sahara at the E. A. R.

A shiek, a real live one with all of the glamour of the desert's sands, will be seen at the E. A. R. theater today and tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, in the best of the Arab plays, "A Son of the Sahara," for May 30 and 31. Bert Lytell, the favorite of this class of plays, supported by the beautiful Claire Windsor, Rosemary Theby and Montague Love, besides over 5,000 Arabs and French Algerian soldiers, are in the cast. The play was made in Africa and possesses atmosphere and surroundings that could not be obtained in any other country. It is true to life, even to the realistic harem with its groups of houri and favorites. It has battles galore, duels and camel races that plow up the desert sands in bewildering manner. In fact it is the best of the desert plays as it was actually made in Algiers with the surroundings so necessary in this kind of a play. Genuine Oulad Nail dancing girls from Biskra in their sensuous dances, the faithful Mohammedans at their worship and shieks that are natives of the soil. It is a great play, well played, and the sumptuous luxury of the palaces and shieks' tent homes is a marvel. Added to this great play on Friday will be the new two act comedy, "No Loafing" and News and other attractions, as well as Friday night being dividend night. On Saturday comes the latest episode of "Leather Stocking" and a comedy playlet.

On Sunday and Monday, June 1 and 2, they will present at the E. A. R. the best of war stories, "Powder River."

To Avoid Confusion in Reaching Englewood Times

As there are three other papers published from the same office as the Englewood Times, there has been some confusion as to which paper the sender desired their article or advertisement to appear in. Our telephones are the same, Englewood 1400, and those desiring to reach us should specifically state the Englewood Times. The Economist, Auburn Park Booster and Merchants Telegram are published by Foster & McDonell, and are all free distribution papers, and in no way connected with the Englewood Times, hence, matter intended for our paper should be sent to the Englewood Times.

Poppy Drive by Veterans of Foreign Wars

The Greater Chicago Post No. 866 of the V. F. W. of the United States, the Southtown's own veteran organization, began their drive exactly at midnight on Friday, when a committee of the ladies, headed by Mrs. Nellie Carlson, president; Mrs. Edith Behr, past president, and Mrs. Maud Sterling, chairman of the auxiliary, and led by Commander Wingerning and Colonel Nicolas Korngold, called at the Englewood police station and pinned the first poppy of the drive on Lieutenant Burns, commanding, and then on all police officers of the midnight shift.

The generosity of the Englewood and Southtown people is well known and they again very generously responded to the call of help from the disabled war veterans.

Saturday was only the beginning, but thousands of poppies were disposed of. At Carpenter's hall, the headquarters of the drive, 6414 S. Halsted st., the plumbers' union held a dance. Here it was shown beyond any doubt that the heart of the unions and the workingmen beat in sympathy for their disabled brethren.

At this dance five ladies of the auxiliary had to be stationed to distribute the poppies. No solicitation was necessary, as the men, their wives, sisters and sweethearts stopped to ask for a poppy and add their mite to the funds of the boys who fought, and lost their health in so doing. Many quarters, half dollars, and even dollars, were dropped into the slot in payment for a poppy, and these honest working men smiled the smile of satisfaction to be able to donate.

It is timely at this time to explain the difference between the Veterans of Foreign Wars and other ex-service men's organizations, as numerous persons have asked that question of the ladies selling the Buddy poppy.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. is the only ex-service men's organization in the United States composed of men who have actually fought this country's battles on foreign soil and hostile waters.

In order to be eligible a man must have seen active war service, as indicated above, in the army, navy or marines.

The Buddy poppy sold through the V. F. W. exclusively is the only poppy manufactured in our own factory, and made by disabled oversea veterans. The manufacture and sale of these poppies is the only source of income of these disabled men.

It is to be hoped that the public will continue as well as they began and help put the Southtown quota over the top bigger than ever.

Tell Weather Conditions by Your Radio

Your radio set is a good weather forecaster, and as soon as you come to understand it, you will be able to predict atmospheric conditions with remarkable accuracy.

With experience it is quite an easy matter actually to predict the forthcoming weather by carefully noting the type of the static signals heard in the telephones due to unwelcome radio waves of atmospheric origin. Thunderstorms, of course, produce the worst form of interference. They make their presence known by "clicks" and "cracks" in the telephone. These static disturbances are a source of great annoyance to radio engineers who are ever endeavoring to design circuits and devices to overcome these malicious oscillations.

Those who possess crystal detectors with their receivers will notice that during atmospheric disturbances of this nature the resulting static "clicks" will paralyze the crystal and will necessitate the exploring of a fresh sensitive point with the usual "cats whisker."

Squalls before and during their throes of violence will produce a low rushing sound in the telephones, increasing in intensity to a crescendo as the storm reaches its maximum. This phenomenon is generally accompanied by a heavy static or electrical charge on the antenna, so that it is quite possible to obtain sparks of considerable dimensions between the aerial and the earth. It is of further interest to note that the direction of incoming squalls can be located by means of the radio direction finder, static signals having a marked direction along the path of the squall.

Snowstorms produce a similar disturbance in the telephones as that due to squalls, although the intensity of these static signals are not so strong and do not impair reception to the same extent. Wind storms will frequently affect a tube receiver in such a manner as to bring about a continuous alteration of the tuning of the installation, causing signals to fade. Then again, there may be a tendency for the circuit to commence oscillating at an audible frequency. These effects are noticed when the "lead in" wire from the aerial is brought down the side of the house, the wind causing the same to swing to and from the wall, bringing about an altered capacity.

In the Sahara and other points on the globe where the phenomena of sand storms are a local occurance, radio receivers are likely to be seriously hampered by these meteorological outbursts. The small particles of sand, during their hurtling through the air on the wings of the wind, become highly charged with frictional electricity which in turn is passed on to any aerial which happens to be in its path. The result is a heavy rushing sound in the telephones and intermittent "clicks."

Recent and Worth-While Books to Read

At the present time there have been more unusual interesting contributions for the discriminating reader than ever before. In any display case, both in our public libraries and in the book shops, you will find not only the latest fiction, but a good proportion of attractive non-fiction books. Books classified as memoirs and biographies seem to be the popular subject of interest this past year. What is more interesting than personal memoirs after all? We have read books by many of these late biographers, and now we may read of the private life of these interesting authors. Some of the outstanding memoirs are "My Garden of Memory," by that very popular and humorous writer, Kate Douglas Wiggin. Also "Life and Letters of Walter Hines Page." This is very interesting, and it contains information about many political characters other than the writer, as well as late world history. There have been many biographies of famous personages on the stage, and the most recent is Otis Skinner's "Footlights and Spotlights." Another attractive one is "Actorviews," by Ashton Stevens, present critic of one of our daily papers. Then there is John Drew's "My Years on the Stage," upon which no comment need be made. One of the greatest and most popular books this season is that realistic and beautiful "Life of Christ," by Papini. If you have not read it, you surely have a treat in store for you. We also recommend you to read "Americanization of Edward Bok." This is extremely interesting, as it tells the progress made by Edward Bok after coming to America at a very early age as a poor little Dutch boy with no education, and later developing into editor of one of the largest American magazines, "The Ladies' Home Journal." Another good memoir, but not especially recent, is Lewisohn's "Up Stream." You will be interested in learning of the new and attractive biography of that famous personage, Sarah Bernhardt.

One of the recent books of travel is Mr. Beebe's book entitled "Galapagos," meaning world's end. The author transports the reader into the heart of a world that is still in the age of reptiles, or a world before the appearance of man. This book is a valuable one, being worth $9.00 a copy. Another attractive book with beautiful colored plates is Hammerton's "Wonders of the Past, or the Romance of Antiquity."

We must not overlook the various outlines that have been contributed to us by well-known authorities. "Outline of History," by H. G. Wells, needs no introduction, as its popularity speaks for itself. Then we have a splendid outline of literature by Drinkwater, the English dramatist. Also the "Outline of Science," by Thomson, very beautifully illustrated. For the artist we have Faure's "Outline of Art," which is quite extensively covered in three volumes.

There are some good collections of poetry and one of the very popular ones is Mr. Nicolson's "King of the Black Isles." We all know Mr. Nicolson was a daily contributor to the late in the Tribune. Another collection is Edna St. Vincent Millay's "Harp Weaver," and Mr. Robert Frost's "New Hampshire."

This list would not be our complete weekly offering in late books if we did not list for you the recent seven-day books purchased for this branch. They are the following:

"Heirs Apparent," by Gibbs: "Mistress Wilding," by Sabatini; "Fidelia," by Balmer; "Mother of Gold," by Hough; "Silk," by Merwin; "Eagle's Wing," by Sinclair; "Children of the Age," by Hamsun; "Parson's Progress," by Mackenzie.

Books of Real Interest at Kelly Branch

At this present time there have been more unusually interesting books for the discriminating reader to read than ever before. In any display case both in our public libraries and in our attractive book shops, you will find not only the best sellers in fiction, but a good proportion of the most attractively bound non-fiction books. There you will find some wonderful memoirs and recollections of interesting people whose private life has always been sort of a mystery to us. Then there are the personal narratives of travel and adventure; the various outlines of science, art, history and literature, also some noted collections of poetry and drama. We are listing some of the best selections in the various interesting groups mentioned above.

"My Garden of Memory," Kate Douglas Wiggin. This is a charming book with the most personal recollections of that very popular and humorous writer.

"Life and Letters of Walter Hines Page," Burton Hendrick. This is intensly interesting and you will become more enlightened on political affairs and famous personages in this country as well as enjoying Mr. Page's famous letters.

"My Years on the Stage," John Drew. From Mr. Drew's many years of experience on the stage, he has been able to draw very lively sketches of his colleagues and many of them are at present in the public eye.

"My Disillusionment in Russia," Emma Goldman. Exciting account of the eminent socialist, and her late views on Russian affairs.

"Americanization of Edward Bok." This is an interesting autobiography of a little Dutch boy who came to America entirely unknown to anyone, his education limited and yet by some curious fate began to write, and soon became editor of the largest circulating magazine in America, "The Ladies Home Journal."

"Life of Christ," Papini. This book needs little comment, except it is a book we should all read and own if possible. It has been widely talked of and discussed in review papers.

"Strenuous American," Dibble.

"Up Stream," Lewisohn. This is most highly recommended for good reading.

"Dance of Life," Havelock Ellis. Interesting chapters on life. Some of the chapters are on the art of thinking, art of dancing, art of morals, art of living, etc.

"Outline of Science," Thomson. These are very attractive volumes on science and written in a most interesting style and not overly scientific as you might imagine.

"Outline of Literature," Drinkwater. This is a splendid outline of literature from the earliest period down to the present modern realistic school of reading.

Outline of Art," W. Orpen. This as you would expect is extremely attractive with beautiful colored plates illustrating famous paintings.

Some of the late fiction found on our shelves: Adams, Siege; Gibbs. Heirs Apparent; Hough, Mother of Gold; Sabatini, Mistress Wilding; Terhune, Treve; Balmer, Fidelia; Merwin, Silk; Overton, Thousand and One Nights; Sinclair, Eagle's Wing; Hamsun, Children of the Age; Mackenzie, Parson's Progress; Deledda, The Mother; Herrick, Waste.

"Heirs Apparent," Gibbs. This is another story of modern youth of today and the author's sympathetic attention is remarkably drawn. Story of a youth and a maid expelled from Oxford and the consequences which follow.

"Siege," Adams. A novel depicting the irrepressible conflict between the old type woman representing authority and tradition, and the new woman reaching for freedom.

"Waste," Herrick. Story of a man who tries to find some basic idealism to live by both in his work, in love, in his friendship, and in his family away from the standards of the crowd. It is a splendid picture of American life of the last forty years. It is written in an intensly interesting style.

British Boilers.

In some parts of England there are steam boilers still working that were installed from fifty to one hundred years ago. They provide active witness to the excellence of British engineering. A short time ago a leading British boiler expert had the curiosity to subject two old iron boilers, probably about sixty years old, to careful tests. He found that the old iron stood up astonishingly well under heavy hydraulic pressure, and he noted particularly that the slight cracks which had been formed round the rivet holes in the original punching had not extended during the working life of the boilers. Thus he proved that the old kind of iron used in these British boilers was hardly surpassed by the material employed by the finest of up-to-date plants.

AN AUTO'S LAMENT

My power's gone and my lights are dim, I've lost my pep and my brakes won't hold;

And I sure did hit the high spots, too blamed much speed to last.
But now my clutheh is slipping, and I hit on two and three,
My top is ripped and my gear is stripped—
Warshawsky's paging me.

Every dog has his day, and it is a wise dog who knows when he is having it.

Casey says, "A mon mebbe workin' fer awl he's wurth, and not be wurth much at thot."

"A mon thot tries to live a fast life, most awlways falls behindt," says Casey.

For every man willing to believe a truth, there are a dozen who will believe a lie.

A lazy man thinks that no one should do so much work that a vacation should be necessary.

The man that believes honesty is the best policy, makes a poor politician.

An Englewood school boy defined the Equator as "A menagerie lion runnin' 'round the center of the earth."

Johnny, the janitor, and another "cullud genleman" were playing poker when Johnny called his friend down with "What kain't you play hones?, ah knows you ain't cause ah know every cahd ah done dealt you."

Ed. Dougherty says the reason that the radio will never become popular with the ladies is because they know it will do no good to answer back. Sic 'em girls!

You may not be able to catch the same fish that you did last year, but you may burnish up the same old lies about them.

The railroads might rent out the subways at 63rd and State sts. to photographers to use as "dark rooms" if they wouldn't be too dark.

A police officer has a great deal to do with the sight of many auto drivers. If there are none at the crossings the drivers cannot see the signals to stop.

A great advantage of being a woman is that they are privileged to change their minds and complexion just whenever they darn please.

Now what would you do when you went to an office and stated modestly that you wanted a typewriter, and be answered, "Which do you want a brunette or a blonde?"

South Park Will Be Taken into the Boulevard System

The committees and communities along South Park ave. are making strenuous efforts to have the avenue between 63rd and 67th sts. (Marquette rd.) opened up to the full width of the lots on the east side of the street, which will make it a wonderful boulevard, and the South Park Board have announced themselves as willing to open the rest of the avenue to 116th st. as a boulevard, giving all of the south side a direct entrance into Indiana and the eastern drives. We would of course have preferred seeing one of the Englewood streets opened through, but are willing our close neighbors should have the honors so long as it is for the benefit of this part of the city.

Stealing Flowers from Lawns

This early in the season we have been called upon to warn owners of lawns planted with flower beds to watch them at nights as several have had their pretty posies cut from the stems and the growing plants ruined by raiders. Our police force is not large enough to guard all of our streets, and this class of thieves are hard to catch in the act, but a mild dose of shot would act as a wonderful remedy and preventative should you catch anyone in the act of despoiling your carefully kept lawn.

Robbing Autos of Parts in Englewood

We have heard of a number of complaints of automobile owners who have parked their cars temporarily on the streets, and returned to them to find the car stripped of many of the accessories and fittings. In explanation of this kind of robbery, it is a common occurrence to have some man or boy offer to sell a spot light, wrench, tool, or even a tire at a greatly reduced price, and a general bad luck story accompanies the explanation as to how the seller came in possession of the article. No one should buy a tool or accessory of anyone they do not know, as it promotes theft by irresponsible persons and your turn may come next.

Honors at St. Bernard's June 18th

On Wednesday, June 18th, a large class of communicants will be confirmed at St. Bernard's church, 66th st. and Stewart ave. Cardinal Mundelein with his court of Bishops will be present, and it is most likely that the honorable title of "Monsignor," lately bestowed on Rev. John F. Ryan, pastor of St. Bernard's, will be conferred on that day. The principal services will be at 10 o'clock in the morning, and a special musical program has been arranged by Director Norine Mulvihill. It will be one of the greatest days in the history of St. Bernard's, and will be made an event in the parish.

It's up to the Janitor

"Editor Englewood Times: We have appealed to you for relief from many abuses for many years and most always get it, so we will try with this one. Our mail box in the front hallway is filled with advertising of all sorts every day, even crowding out our letters, and sometimes we are compelled to go to the door as some of the deliverers ring our bell. Other times we have to go up stairs to get the key to open the mail box, thinking there are letters in the box when it is only some circular. We never read this kind of advertisements, and think very few people do, and it is a great waste of money for the advertisers and certainly is a nuisance to housekeepers. Would be glad if you could suggest some relief, and take the matter up with the Englewood Postmaster.

Mrs. J. T. Dillon."

Miss De La's Piano Recital

Pupils of Miss Mildred DeLa will be heard in a piano recital Thursday evening, June 5, at the Englewood Masonic temple, 6731 Wentworth ave.

Arvesta Parrish, the popular young Englewood contralto, will be the assisting artist.

Contractors Monopolize Walks and Drives

Far be it from the writer to hamper the contractors in their works of buildings and improvements, but they should be regulated in the amount of space they occupy on the streets and thoroughfares while performing such work. Halsted st. has been having a dose of it when a city sidewalk contractor occupies both sides of the street for an entire block, completely shutting off the sidewalks and all of the street not used by the street railway. We noted another case where a contractor building a chimney almost closed the street and one sidewalk, unnecessarily, while he went on merrily splashing mortar on passing pedestrians for nearly a week. Of course the police might regulate such conditions, but they probably are too busy doing something else.

Mrs. Sherwood Celebrates Eightieth Anniversary

Mrs. Jesse Sherwood, 6541 Harvard ave., passed her eightieth milestone Sunday. The event was celebrated by a family dinner at her home when her children, grand children and great grandchildren took part in the entertainment. Little Miss Rita, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell H. Sherwood, gave a beautiful toast and rendered some piano selections. Sherry Kreidler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kreidler, motored in from Laporte, Ind., to help in the celebration.

Oakhaven Auxiliary to Meet at Home

The next regular meeting of the Oakhaven Auxiliary will be the first one to be held at the recently opened Home at Woodrow Wilson road and 113th place. It will be called to order at 2 p. m., Thursday, June 5. The members of Englewood Auxiliary, as well as those of the Ridge, Hyde Park, Woodlawn and Bryn Mawr auxiliaries are to consider this a special invitation to be present upon this unique occasion. A social hour, which undoubtedly will be enjoyed by all, will follow the business meeting.

More Through Streets Needed

One thing that is badly needed in Chicago is more through streets. "The whole trouble lies in the fact that our street and boulevard system has not kept pace with the rapid growth of automobile transportation.

Our streets and boulevards were originally designed to meet the needs of slow moving horse drawn vehicles which were far smaller in number than automobiles today.

A few years ago there were less than 60,000 automobiles in Chicago. Today there are over 300,000. It is impossible to accommodate this many machines without providing adequate thoroughfares.

As it is, practically all traffic from north side flows through Sheridan rd. South side traffic uses Michigan blvd. almost exclusively, and west side traffic is divided between Washington and Jackson blvds.

If there were more through streets—and if these streets were kept in good condition—motorists would use them and congestion would be relieved on the present main thoroughfares.

This would also help greatly in reducing street accidents in Chicago.

Why Against Woodrow Wilson Road?

"Editor Times:

"I have noticed in some localities objections to changing the name of Western ave. to 'Woodrow Wilson Road.' Careful analysis will show that those who object to honoring the great war president are largely the same ones who objected to the war, and the very efficient manner in which President Wilson conducted it. It is hyphenated Americans who object to Wilson's name, but not a single soldier or patriotic civilian, or a 100 per cent American will be found objecting. It is up to Americans to decide whether this honor will be conferred upon our late president, and not his enemies.

"A FAIR AMERICAN."

Kiwanians Endorse Restoration of Art Building

At the Kiwanian luncheon Tuesday, Mr. George T. Donoghue, assistant to the president of the South Park Board, in a brief and practical manner placed before the membership the importance of securing as large a vote on June 2 as is possible to carry over the bond issue for the restoration and rebuilding of the Fine Arts building in Jackson Park. This is a grand opportunity for the people of the south side to secure a permanent convention hall, and the largest indoor building in the world, with nearly seven acres of floor space, that may be adapted to many purposes. Over 25,000 people will have seating space, giving them six feet square to be comfortable in, besides the spaces allowed for committee rooms and other necessary rooms for large gatherings. Chicago lost the Republican national convention because it had no hall large enough to care for the crowd, and Cleveland, with a mere shed in architecture, carried off the bacon. Among all admirers of architecture, this building, the last of the great World's Fair structures, stands as the most perfect specimen of the classic Greek, and the equal of the Parthenon. It can be restored and turned to useful purposes at less expense than it would require to build a foundation for such a building, and it must be done now. When the building is completed it will be self-supporting, and no doubt the revenue derived from it will not only pay the interest on the bonds, but a sinking fund could be formed that will care for the principal when due. There can be no doubt that every vote will be necessary to carry the project through, as there is much propaganda against it from other sections of the city who do not want the south side to have this important lead. The Englewood Kiwanians urge all of their friends to vote favorable and boost in every way in their power for the rebuilding of the Fine Arts building.

June 24 was selected as the day for a barbecue and field day to celebrate the victory of the Englewood Kiwanis in the late attendance contest.

Boys Welcome at Camp Roosevelt

Brand new tents in carload lots are enroute from the army supply base to Camp Roosevelt, La Porte, Ind., to provide shelter for the hundreds of boys who will be trained in mind and body there this summer, from June 30 to August 16.

"Parents can find no better place for boys in the summer than Camp Roosevelt," said General Hale, after witnessing a parade of six hundred upright, clear-eyed youths. "I am going to send four boys to the camp each summer, as I did last."

Over three thousand boys between the ages of ten and sixteen got their first taste of outdoor life under army discipline, under the tents being replaced by these new ones. The camp has been in existence for five years, and the coming summer promises to be better than any of the previous ones. New and interesting courses are being planned, and in addition to those already included in the camp program, will provide for boys from 10 to 16 the finest kind of summer's outing that can be found. Swimming, athletics of all kinds, rifle practice on the long and short ranges, woodcraft, campcraft, military drill, horsemanship, and school courses, if desired, are offered.

The Camp Roosevelt committee, a group of Chicago business men, cooperates with the board of education and the U. S. army in making the camp possible. Major F. L. Deals, U. S. Army, in command of the camp, is supervisor of physical education and military training in the Chicago high schools, and maintains camp headquarters at 400 S. State st., Chicago, the year round.

Modern Woodmen to Observe a Memorial Day

Modern Woodmen of Cook county will observe the society's annual Memorial day with appropriate exercises at Arlington cemetery, one mile northeast of Elmhurst, Ill., on Sunday afternoon, June 1, 1921. A special train has been provided which will leave the C. & N. W. depot at 1:00 p. m., daylight saving time, making all stops to Elmhurst. Greatly reduced rates for the round trip have also been secured. The parade from Elmhurst to the cemetery will be led by the First Illinois Regiment, M. W. of A. Foresters. Graves will be decorated and there will be an appropriate program which will include addresses by Head Banker O. E. Aleshire and Supreme National Lecturer Chas. E. Whelan.

Mr. Harry T. Cooper, son and grandson, Columbus, Ohio, spent the past week with their aunt, Miss Nora Fawcett, 6417 Harvard ave.

Is Business Bad? Here's the Trouble

By Harry Himmel

It's the same old story but it's true. There are two kinds of people—pessimists and "go-getters."

Perhaps you have run across pessimists lately who tell you that "summer is always a time of dull business"—"Everybody is out of town"—"No one will buy now."

It may be true, but—the street cars are running, the streets seem crowded (remember how you were bumped by a dozen people on 63rd and Halsted sts.) Hotels and apartment houses tell us that more people are coming to town now than for months past.

And as for people not buying—it's the rankest kind of nonsense. How long can the average family live without buying? Everybody in Englewood would be a skeleton in a few weeks or rather days, if they quit buying.

And if people are not buying, who are the thousands who are daily thronging the stores throughout town. Summer is always dull to those who are trying to find an excuse for not exerting themselves to get business.

The "go-getters" are finding business—a lot of it—and one of the ways they use to find this business is to go get it. When some one asks you how you find business tell them you find business by going after it. That's the spirit that wins and all the world loves a winner. Englewood has very few winners because they have very few go-getters. How about it, business men? Clean up your shops, fix up a snappy show window—one that attracts attention and let's get the business.

Reception to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Costello

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fahnestock held a reception at their home, 6609 Parnell ave., Saturday evening, May 17, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Costello, who were recently married in Champaign, Ill., and now reside at 911 E. 65th st.

At 6 o'clock a three course dinner was served. Covers were laid for sixteen guests, all friends of the newly-weds. The color scheme was carried out in pink and white.

After dinner the evening was spent in social games and dancing. The bride and groom were recipients of a silver fruit bowl.

The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Bert Clark, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Will Duffy, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McKeown, Mr. Glenn Harper, Miss Vera Standford, Mr. Lowell Jefferis, Mr. Ralph McKinney.

John Schroeder Not Retiring

While that hustling booster, John Schroeder, has sold his battery and tire business at 506 63rd st., he has not retired from business, but simply "gone higher"—at least to the second floor above his old location—where he has opened offices as secretary and manager of the Chicago Tire Dealers association, and is also handling a tire repairing machine of his invention. He sold the store to Mr. Phillip Marles, formerly of 53rd st. and Indiana ave., who will continue the business so successfully run by Mr. Schroeder. John is now busy preparing for a pilgrimage to Denver, Col., next month with the Kiwanis to attend their international convention.

Englewood-Made Radios

The Englewood Thor Shop, Joseph Huguelet and Lieutenant John Sink, are the manufacturers and have opened a regular radio manufactury at their store, 6122 South Halsted st. They have real expert experience, and can advise amateurs on any sort of radio they may want to build. They carry a very complete line of accessories of all kinds used in radio work, and are pleased to render any service the radio "bug" may care to have done. If you are at all interested in this absorbing subject, give them a call. Of course they are still selling the wonderful Thor washing machines and their regular line of electrical goods, and ask a call from the old and new friends.

June 1 will be Intermediate Sunday at the Englewood Baptist church. Dr. Charles A. Brooks will preach in the morning on "Who's Son are You?" In the evening the Intermediate B. Y. P. U. will participate under the leadership of Mr. Murphy.

The Cost of Glasses

When you think of having your eyes examined and of the possibility of wearing glasses, the matter of cost naturally arises.

As in everything else, good work, careful, skillful work, is apt to cost more than work less good.

There is nothing you buy for your personal use that you ought to be more careful about, that you can afford to have the best of, than these glasses that you are going to depend on to preserve and assist your eyesight. My twenty-five years' experience is at your service.
